Court: Cash Unfair to Blind

Decision could result in redesign of paper money in the U.S.

WASHINGTON | Close your eyes, reach into your wallet and try to distinguish between a $1 bill and a $5 bill. Impossible? It's also discriminatory, a federal appeals court says.

Since all paper money feels pretty much the same, the government is denying blind people meaningful access to the currency, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit ruled Tuesday. The decision could force the Treasury Department to make bills of different sizes or print them with raised markings or other distinguishing features.

The American Council of the Blind sued for such changes, but the government has been fighting the case for about six years.

The U.S. acknowledges the current design hinders blind people but argues that the blind have adapted. Some rely on store clerks to help, some use credit cards and others fold certain corners to distinguish between bills. "I don't think we should have to rely on people to tell us what our money is," said Mitch Pomerantz, Council of the Blind president.

Some use electronic currency readers. But they can be expensive, and they sometimes have problems with new $20 bills.

The court ruled 2-1 that such adaptations were insufficient under the Rehabilitation Act. "Even the most searching tactile examination will reveal no difference between a $100 bill and a $1 bill. The secretary has identified no reason that requires paper currency to be uniform to the touch," Judge Judith W. Rogers wrote for the majority.

Courts don't decide how to design currency. That's up to the Treasury Department, and the ruling forces the department to address the problem. MATT APUZZO (AP)

Elite Cloning Project Sees First Success

Twins Michelle and Erica Wheeler have a lot in common: like graduating from their 850-student high school in Othello, Wash., as dual valedictorians. Both took advance placement classes—including English, science and calculus — “the toughest courses we offer at the high school,” school counselor Norma Gonzalez said. They’re also active in Future Farmers of America and play on the school softball team — Michelle as pitcher and Erica as catcher. “You would love to have a classroom of 30 of them or 40 of them,” math teacher Laurie Stickel said. “They’re good, wholesome kids.”

Arrest of Cougar Ends Odd Practice

A donkey is doing time in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Mexico, for assault and battery. The animal was locked up at a local jail that normally holds people for public drunkenness and other disturbances after it bit and kicked two men near a ranch in Chiapas state. Officer Sinar Gomez said the donkey will remain behind bars until its owner agrees to pay the men's medical bills. “Around here, if someone commits a crime, they are jailed — no matter who they are,” Gomez said. CAPITOL CONCERN: From left, Sens. Christopher Dodd, Harry Reid and John Kerry talk about the cancer diagnosis of their Democratic colleague Sen. Edward Kennedy.

For Kennedys, Another Tragic Turn

Political dynasty's last surviving son faces difficult cancer battle

BOSTON | Sen. Edward M. Kennedy was diagnosed with a cancerous brain tumor Tuesday in what could be the final chapter in a life marked by exhilarating triumph and shattering tragedy. Some experts gave the liberal lion less than a year to live.

Doctors discovered the tumor after the 76-year-old senator and sole surviving son of America's most storied political family suffered a

TOUGH TO TREAT

→ A malignant glioma — the diagnosis doctors gave Sen. Edward Kennedy — is the worst kind of brain cancer. Malignant gliomas strike almost 9,000 Americans per year. Survival statistics are grim: Few live three years, and half of those with the worst type die within a year.

→ The length of time a person lives depends on exactly what form of glioma the person has, whether surgeons can cut most of it out, the person's age and some other medical details. Kennedy's doctors didn't mention surgery, suggesting surgery may not be a possibility for him. (AP) seizure over the weekend. The diagnosis cast a pall over Capitol Hill, where the Massachusetts Democrat has served since 1962, and came as a shock to a family all too accustomed to sudden, calamitous news.

"Ted Kennedy and the Kennedy family have faced adversity more times in more instances with more courage and more determination and more grace than most families have to," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass. "Every one of us knows what a big heart this fellow has. He's helped millions and millions of people — from the biggest of legislation on the floor to the most personal."

Kerry added: "This guy is one unbelievable fighter."

Kennedy's doctors said he will remain in the hospital for the next couple days as they consider chemotherapy and radiation. They did not mention surgery, a possible indication the tumor is inoperable.

In a statement, Dr. Lee Schwamm, vice chairman of neurology at Massachusetts General, and Dr. Larry Ronan, Kennedy's primary physician, said the senator "has had no further seizures, remains in good overall condition, and is up and walking around the hospital."

“Every one of us knows what a big heart this fellow has.”

"He remains in good spirits and full of energy," the physicians said.

Senators heard about Kennedy's condition during their closed-door policy lunches, and some looked drawn or misty-eyed.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., wept as he prayed for "my dear, dear friend, dear friend, Ted Kennedy" during a speech on the Senate floor.

"Keep Ted here for us and for America," said the 90-year-old Byrd, who is in a wheelchair. He added: "Ted, Ted, Ted. My dear friend. I love you and miss you."

In a statement, President Bush saluted Kennedy as "a man of tremendous courage, remarkable strength and powerful spirit." He added: "We join our fellow Americans in praying for his full recovery." GLEN JOHNSON (AP)

Dems' Fla. Boycott Ends

Clinton, Obama will campaign in state for first time in months

TALLAHASSEE, FLA. | The boycott is over.

Democratic presidential candidates Barack Obama and Hillary Rodham Clinton will both be in Florida on Wednesday after avoiding the state since last fall.

Obama is seeking to mend fences in a key general election state snubbed by the Democratic National Committee. Clinton is continuing her push to have the state's primary count and its delegates seated at the party's national convention in Denver in August.

Both candidates signed a pledge nine months ago that kept them from campaigning here before the Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton did not campaign in Florida for months.

Jan. 29 primary. Other than a rally Clinton held after polls closed that night, neither candidate has campaigned here since the DNC stripped Florida of its delegates because its primary was held before Feb. 5.

The fact that neither campaigned here for months created bitterness among the state's Democrats.

Clinton supporter Ana Cruz, former executive director of the state party, said Obama will have to address the delegate issue while he's in Florida.

"He's coming here to show Florida some love, and rightfully so, but with that being said, there are still a lot of unanswered questions that need to be answered in order for us to properly move forward in this primary process and that is, do we count or not?" Cruz said.

Cruz said the state's Democrats will have to put the primary mess behind them and unite behind Obama if he wins the nomination.

"We cannot continue to act like a circular firing squad," she said.

Ban on 'Downer' Cows Is Planned

Rule change comes in wake of nation's largest-ever beef recall

WASHINGTON | Agriculture Secretary Ed Schafer announced Tuesday a total ban on the slaughter at meat plants of cows too sick or weak to stand.

The planned change comes in the wake of the nation's largest beef recall. It would shut down an exception that allows a small number of so-called "downer" cattle into the food supply if they pass veterinary inspection.

Downer cows pose increased risk for mad cow disease, E. coli and other infections, partly because they typically wallow in feces. They are already mostly banned from slaughter, but under current rules can be allowed in if they fall down after passing an initial veterinary inspection, and then are re-inspected and pass that second inspection, too.

Schafer announced the planned new rule to reporters following a 60-day review of conditions at the nation's slaughterhouses. The department hopes to finalize the rule within several months.

The review was prompted by a 143 million-pound beef recall in February, ordered after the Humane Society released video showing employees abusing downer cows at Westland/Hallmark Meat Co. in Chino, Calif. Downer cows at the plant were forced to slaughter without the required second inspection, which is why the recall was ordered.

Schafer

Schafer said that no such violations have been found at other slaughterhouses.

The change would affect a small number of cows. Out of 34 million cows slaughtered in 2007, about 2,700 fell down after the initial veterinary inspection and were re-inspected, Schafer said.

One of the quickest and most effective ways to cleanse your body of toxins, poisons and sludge that otherwise would not move

ALSO HELPS REDUCE HEADACHES, CONSTIPATION, GAS AND BLOATING. WORKS TO IMPROVE YOUR IMMUNE SYSTEM, HAVE MORE ENERGY AND BE LESS IRRITABLE. REDUCE EXCESS WEIGHT AND BAD BREATH. LOOK SLIMMER AND GET THE HELP YOU NEED FOR IRRITABLE BOWELS AND IMPAIRED DIGESTION.

By: S. Hufford, Media Services

Yes, you can now turn your body into a fat burning machine safely and naturally.

You can look slimmer, lose excess weight and help rid your body of toxins, poisons and sludge that have been building up in you for years.

You can also reduce headaches, constipation, gas and bloating. Improve your immune system, have more energy, be less irritable, reduce bad breath and get the help you need for irritable bowels and impaired digestion.

The amazing new item that we felt was necessary to report on is known as The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete.

And please, don't accept any substitutions or imitations.

The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete is absolutely phenomenal.

Users of Slim & Cleanse have reported weight loss of up to 15 pounds, beautiful hair and skin as well as improved immune systems, increased energy and so much more.

Just look at what some of the thousands of the Original Slim & Cleanse users had to say...

Michelle, a Registered Nurse, reported that... "After taking Slim & Cleanse I lost 15 pounds! I felt better and had a ton of energy. I definitely will follow it up with the Maintenance Program to make sure that I keep my new healthy lifestyle going. Thanks Slim & Cleanse. I truly do feel like a new woman."

John, a retired National Guardsman, reported... "So far I've lost 12 pounds and feel really healthy. I don't know how, but I also don't feel as much pain in my joints as I used to. I definitely need a bottle of Slim & Cleanse for my wife."

Melissa, a housewife and mother of 2, said... "I just want to tell you how much of a blessing Slim & Cleanse has been to me. Before I began taking Slim & Cleanse I would feel tired and sluggish in the mornings, not wanting to even get out of bed."

But now I can truly say that after Slim & Cleanse I've lost 13 pounds, I feel better and much more energetic. My skin looks better and even my hair looks great. I didn't know toxins in your body could cause so many problems. I would recommend Slim & Cleanse to anyone."

Missy, an attorney, reported... "Thank you so much! My stomach has already started to flatten and I've lost 5 pounds. It's just my first week of taking Slim & Cleanse but I have already started to see and feel a major difference in my life."

There are testimonials and studies to back up this product and each ingredient it contains, so we dug deeper into even more research.

Believe it or not, the quickest and most effective way to turn your body into a fat burning machine is by getting rid of the toxins, poisons and sludge that have been building up in you for the last 10, 20 or even 30 years.

This not only helps you get rid of excess pounds but also increases your energy and improves your digestion so that food is better assimilated instead of stored as fat.

Slim & Cleanse helps you get rid of the most stubborn toxins in your body safely and naturally.

Whether we like it or not, we have all accumulated toxins within our bodies that add to our midriff. So by getting rid of this excess sludge internally you can make a very noticeable and positive difference externally.

Also, once your body is cleansed, it can utilize nutrients much more efficiently, thus reducing your craving for sweets and fatty foods.

After many late nights of researching other products that claim to do the same thing, the product we've found to be the ultimate colon cleansing formula available on the market today is The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete.

There are just so many people that use this all-natural supplement and almost all report losing weight naturally and loving their flatter belly.

Cleansing your colon with Slim & Cleanse can also provide some relief from constipation, diarrhea, breath and body odors, fatigue, headaches, sinus problems, allergies, hemorrhoids, weight problems, digestive difficulties, back and muscle aches, knee pain, poor eyesight, poor memory, stress and much, much more.

We as human beings cannot expect to have quick minds or vitality for living when our bodies are polluted with waste.

So it's no surprise that people also reported greater alertness, overwhelming joy, incredible insight and even better sex after cleansing their colon with The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete.

Some people have even lost up to 15 pounds after taking this amazing colon cleansing program.

And many older users report dramatic relief of aches and pains in their back, knees and joints. Others noticed a dramatic increase of energy and mental awareness.

It's a fact that cleaning your bowels gets rid of poisons throughout your body. It allows regeneration of your blood and energy naturally. And allows your body to repair itself the natural way nature intended. There's just no way around it.

Do you have a couple of pounds of what you think is bulging fat around your hips and pelvic area? If so, you should know this condition could be a direct result of poor colon hygiene. Your pot belly is not your stomach, it is an overly full colon.

So get rid of the toxins, poisons and sludge that are dragging you down.

The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete allows you to safely and naturally cleanse your colon without pain, bloating, gas, diarrhea or constantly running to the restroom.

For more on the amazing product, The Original Slim & Cleanse Complete, here's part of my interview with the scientist and creator...

Q. When should I start taking The Original Slim & Cleanse?

A. You can start at any time. While extremely effective at cleansing the colon, Slim & Cleanse is also very gentle.

Most people report they don't have to 'run to the restroom' or even keep close to one. Slim & Cleanse is very natural without pain, bloating, gas or diarrhea.

Q. How long before I see results?

A. Most people actually see results within 24 hours. And if you're really interested in actually "seeing" visible results, we recommend you pay attention to what's leaving your body each and every day.

Q. How long should I take The Original Slim & Cleanse?

A. You only need to take The Original Slim & Cleanse for one month.

One month is extremely short if you consider that it took decades to accumulate all the toxins in your body, so it is literally impossible to get rid of everything in just a few days or even a couple of weeks.

So after taking Slim & Cleanse for a full 30 days you should be functioning great.

Q. Is Slim & Cleanse safe?

A. Yes. Slim & Cleanse is 100% natural. Our experience is that Slim & Cleanse does not interfere with medications or other nutritional supplements. If you have a serious medical condition though, it is always a good idea to consult your physician before starting any new supplement or exercise program.

Q. Will I lose weight taking The Original Slim & Cleanse? How much? How quickly?

A. Many of the people that take Slim & Cleanse have reported weight loss (anywhere from a few pounds to 15 or more). And one thing that almost everyone boasts about is their flatter belly.

Keep in mind that the average person could be lugging around 5 - 25 pounds of impacted fecal matter in his or her intestines.

In fact, according to reports, John Wayne died with 40 pounds of fecal matter in his colon and Elvis Presley had over 50 pounds in his.

So as Slim & Cleanse sweeps your colon clean and this waste leaves your body, a person is bound to lose weight. Plus, once your body is cleansed, you can assimilate nutrients much more efficiently, thus reducing the craving for sweets and fatty foods.

Some users have felt so great while taking Slim & Cleanse they added in exercise and saw even more dramatic weight loss.

Q. What exactly is Slim & Cleanse Complete?

A. Slim & Cleanse Complete is one of the most powerful, yet the most gentle all-natural colon cleanser, improving intestinal tone, function, and health.

It uses all 7 of Nature's most powerful cleansing ingredients, not just one.

Slim & Cleanse has Fennel in it which is one of nature's very best diuretics for your digestive system.

It contains Buckthorn Bark which gently increases the motility of your colon by inhibiting stationary and stimulating comfortable contractions that remove the sludge from your colon like nothing else can.

Psyllium (which the FDA granted approval of products that contain psyllium to put heart healthy claims on their labels) is one of the best, most powerful and gentle all-natural fibers nature ever made. It increases stool mass more effectively than any other laxative fiber source.

Rhubarb, which is more than just fiber is a natural astringent so that your colon is cleaned out and cleaned out good.

And there's Licorice Root which is known in the medical field as the "Great Detoxifier" so your entire colon is absolutely detoxified.

10,000 Iraqi Troops Enter Sadr City

Deployment is part of government attempt to re-establish control

BAGHDAD | About 10,000 Iraqi troops fanned out in Baghdad's Sadr City on Tuesday, taking positions on roads, rooftops and near hospitals in an attempt to establish government control in the Shiite militia enclave for the first time since Saddam Hussein's ouster.

Success relies on whether a truce holds with fighters loyal to anti-U.S.

Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr.

The large force in tanks and Humvees and on foot met no resistance from al-Sadr's Mahdi Army as it rolled into the district.

The Iraqi soldiers and police passed burned-out shops and buildings pockmarked with bullet holes, signs of years of clashes. But many stores were open, and some residents came out to greet them. Some Mahdi Army fighters passed out copies of the Koran to the soldiers as a sign of good will.

It was a stark contrast to a government offensive against Shiite militias in Basra launched in late March. That assault sparked a wave of Mahdi Army violence across the south and in Sadr City.

Tuesday's deployment was paved by a truce reached last week, under which militiamen promise not to attack residential areas or the Green Zone, but do not have to give up their light weapons.

It is the latest attempt by Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki to impose government authority in areas controlled by armed groups. (AP)

The U.N. children's agency said in a statement Tuesday that an estimated 126,000 Ethiopian children urgently need food and medical care because of severe malnutrition caused by this year's countrywide drought and skyrocketing global food prices — and called the current crisis “the worst since the major humanitarian crisis of 2003.” The U.N. Myanmar OKs U.N. Aid From 9 Helicopters

YANGON, MYANMAR | The United Nations has received permission from Myanmar's government to operate nine helicopters to bring relief supplies to victims of the country's recent Cyclone Nargis, U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said Tuesday.

“We have received government permission to operate nine WFP [World Food Program] helicopters, which will allow us to reach areas that have so far been largely inaccessible,” Ban told reporters in New York before departing on a mission to Myanmar. His announcement was not immediately confirmed by Myanmar officials.

“I believe further similar moves will follow, including expediting the visas of relief workers seeking to enter the country,” he said. “I'm confident that emergency relief efforts can be scaled up quickly.” (AP)

China Quake Relief Shifts

Government focuses on how to shelter the 5 million left homeless

AN XIAN, CHINA | China grappled Tuesday with the next massive task of its earthquake disaster — how to shelter the 5 million people left homeless.

Tent cities like one at the base of Qianfo mountain are springing up in the disaster zone, offering some stability — along with food and medical care — to those whose lives were upended by the tremor.

“After the quake, we couldn’t sleep for five days. We were really, really afraid,” said Chen Shigui, 55, who climbed for two days with his wife and injured father to reach the camp from their mountain village. “I felt relieved when we got here.”

Earthquake survivors look at a list of missing people in Mianyan, China.

But there’s not enough to go around. The government issued an urgent appeal Tuesday for tents, and it brought in the first foreign teams of doctors and field hospitals. Some of the doctors were swapping out with overseas search and rescue specialists.

The switch underscored a shift in the response to China’s worst disaster

On the second of a three-day national mourning period, the disaster’s confirmed death toll rose to more than 40,000, with at least another 10,000 expected, and officials said more than 32,000 people were still missing. TINI TRAN (AP)

Court: Va. Abortion Ban Unlawful

State law prohibiting late-term abortions ruled unconstitutional

A federal appeals court has ruled that Virginia's ban on late-term abortions, approved by the General Assembly in 2003 over objections from then-governor Mark R. Warner, a Democrat, is unconstitutional.

In a ruling issued Tuesday afternoon, the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals said the procedures covered under Virginia's ban impose "an undue burden on a woman's right to obtain an abortion."

The ruling will likely reignite the abortion debate in Virginia.

Supporters of Virginia's ban say it would stop the practice of killing infants moments after they are prematurely delivered. But the 2003 Virginia law did not include a health exception. Warner vetoed the law, and the legislature over-rode his veto.

The 4th Circuit, one of the most conservative appellate courts in the nation, initially struck down the Virginia law in 2005 because it lacked an exception to safeguard a woman's health. But in 2007, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a federal ban on some types of late-term abortions. The Supreme Court then sent the Virginia case back to the 4th Circuit for further reconsideration. Arguments were heard in November.

In Tuesday's 2-1 ruling, the appellate court noted there are differences between the federal ban and Virginia's law as it relates to the types of procedures that are prohibited.

The Richmond-based Family Foundation, which fought for the Virginia ban, said in a statement it hopes the U.S. Supreme Court will now reverse Tuesday's 4th Circuit ruling. TIM CRAIG (THE WASHINGTON POST)

War Vets Shut Out Of Parade

WASHINGTON | A veterans group that opposes the war in Iraq has been blocked from marching in a Memorial Day parade in Washington after being told its plans, which once included a casket representing war dead, would be too political for the event.

Veterans for Peace was initially granted a spot in the May 26 parade that is scheduled to travel down Constitution Avenue, past landmarks that include the Washington Monument and the White House.

But the American Veterans Center, a nonprofit that organizes the parade, has pulled that approval, saying it does not allow the expression of political viewpoints.

Last year, two groups that supported the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan were turned down.

Pr. George's Set to Raise Income Tax

The Prince George's County Council voted Tuesday to raise the income tax on county residents and the recordation tax on those selling houses. The council voted 8-0 with one abstention but offered no public comment on the two proposals.

Afterward, County Council Chairman Samuel H. Dean, D-Mitchellville, declined a request for comment, indicating he would not speak about the tax increase until after the council adopts the county's budget Wednesday.

The county's income tax rate would rise from 3.1 percent to 3.2 percent on July 1, and the recordation tax, applied when homes change ownership, would increase from $2.20 per $500 of home value to $2.50 per $500. ROSALIND S. HELDERMAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Used Oil Stolen for Fuel

Restaurants across the country report cooking grease thefts

SAN FRANCISCO | A few years ago, drums of used french fry grease were of interest only to a small network of underground biofuel brewers, who would use the slimy oil to power their souped-up antique Mercedes cars.

Now, restaurants from Berkeley, Calif., to Sedgwick, Kan., are reporting thefts of old cooking oil worth thousands of dollars by rustlers who are refining it into barrels of biofuel in backyard stills.

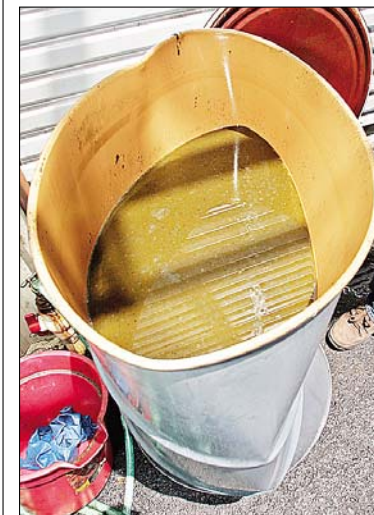

“It’s like a war zone going on right now over grease,” said David Levenson, who owns a grease hauling business in San Francisco’s Mission District. “We’re seeing more and more people stealing grease because it lets them stay away from the pump, but it’s hurting our bottom line.”

Grease is transformed into fuel through a chemical process called transesterification, which removes glycerine and adds methanol to the oil, leaving a thinner product that can power a diesel engine.

In the last three years, the price of soybean oil — the main feedstock for biodiesel made in the United States — has tripled. Last week, a gallon of crude soybean oil fetched 66 cents on the open market, according to the National Biodiesel Board.

Those kinds of numbers have encouraged biofuel enthusiasts to plunder restaurants’ greasy waste and have even spurred the city of San Francisco to get into the grease-trap cleaning business.

“Restaurants and staff are no longer looking at this material as trash; they’re looking at it as something that’s about to go into city vehicles,” said Karri Ving, who runs the city’s oil collection. “Unless you lock down every trash can, thefts are going to happen.” GARANCE BURKE (AP)

Spurs Are Still the NBA's 'Class Act'

Byron Scott says his Hornets aspire to be just like San Antonio

NBA PLAYOFFS | Tony Parker swished a crucial jumper with 50 seconds on the clock. Manu Ginobili followed with four key free throws, essentially booking the San Antonio Spurs a date in the Western Conference finals.

This wasn't the ending Hornets coach Byron Scott envisioned, but he admired the poise of the defending champion Spurs as they pulled out a grueling, seven-game series with a 91-82 triumph in front of a hostile crowd on Monday night.

"If you have to lose to anybody, San Antonio is a class act," Scott said. "We aspire to be like they are in every facet. They are one of the best organizations in all of sports."

With a young nucleus of Chris Paul, David West and Tyson Chandler, the Hornets appear destined for greater things, but now is not their time. It's the Spurs and their championship ring-laden trio of Tim Duncan, Ginobili and Parker who'll be traveling to Los Angeles to face the Lakers in Game 1 of the Western Conference finals on Wednesday night.

Tony Parker, Manu Ginobili and Tim Duncan have led the Spurs to the conference finals on their quest for a fourth title in six years.

Ginobili scored 26 points and Parker added 17 to help the Spurs hold off the Hornets' late rally and become the first team in the series to win away from home.

"We really believed we had a chance to win on the road here," said Duncan, who had 16 points and 14 rebounds. "It's just a lot of confidence, a lot of games under our belt."

"I don't understand — why don't people like us?"

Bruce Bowen talks with Mike Wise, who explains to Bowen why the public is bored by a team that just wins all the time. | Today, Sports

IN The Washington Post

The win gave Spurs coach Gregg Popovich 100 playoff victories, moving him into a tie with Larry Brown for third on the career list. Popovich was just relieved to be rid of a Hornets squad that pushed his team to the limit.

"I'm glad that's over," he said. "The Hornets are an unbelievably tough team in every way you could imagine, and they had a fantastic year. I don't think there's any doubt their time will come."

NFL Labor Agreement To End in '11

Owners vote to break contract before 2013, will try to renegotiate

NFL | NFL owners voted unanimously Tuesday to end their labor agreement with the players' union in 2011. The league and union, however, insisted the next three seasons won't be interrupted by a contract dispute, and both sides are working toward a new deal.

"We have guaranteed three more years of NFL football," commissioner Roger Goodell said after the owners used the opt-out clause built into the agreement signed more than two years ago. "We are not in dire straits. ... But the agreement isn't working, and we're looking to get a more fair an equitable deal."

Goodell

The decision by the owners was anticipated, although not this early. The 2006 agreement allowed either side to negate the contract by Nov. 8. Goodell said the owners acted early "to get talks rolling."

"I don't think it was a shock to anyone," said Gene Upshaw, director of the NFL Players Association.

The owners noted that they are paying $4.5 billion to players this year, just under 60 percent of their total revenues as specified in the 2006 agreement. The owners also want to distribute the money more to veterans than to unproven rookies.

The debate will continue in negotiations and through the media over a course of months and years. Both conceded there might be no agreement until the deadline, which Upshaw suggested might not happen until the winter of 2010. That would be a year without a salary cap under terms of the deal.

"We'd like to get things done," Goodell said. "But often it's not until you have a deadline that people realize the consequences of not reaching a deal." DAVE GOLDBERG (AP)

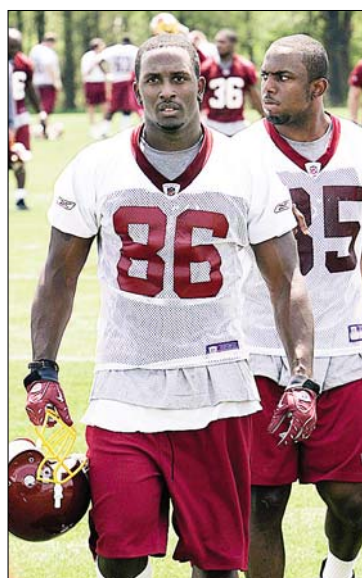

Davis Apologizes for 'Minor Mistake'

Redskins' rookie tight end shows up on time for weight training

REDSKINS | Less than a month after being drafted, Washington Redskins tight end Fred Davis stepped behind a podium Tuesday and performed a familiar professional sports ritual: the prearranged, contrite apology.

Davis apologized to owner Dan Snyder, coach Jim Zorn and his Redskins teammates for the "minor mistake" of missing a minicamp practice on May 4. The second-round draft pick from USC said he overslept after switching hotel rooms the night before.

"It was something that was irre-

Rookie Fred Davis, left, said he was sorry for sleeping in during minicamp.

BUSY DAY IN MAY

With the NFL season still months away, Tuesday was a surprisingly busy day for pro football:

- The Falcons' No. 3 overall draft pick, QB Matt Ryan, signed a six-year, $72 million contract.
- The Cowboys re-signed RB Marion Barber to a six-year, $45 million deal and gave CB Terrance Newman a six-year extension worth more than $50 million.

sponsible of me, and I just now want to move on," Davis said.

The timing of Davis' apology coincided with his return to Redskins Park for offseason weight training. He had to go home after minicamp because a rookie can't work out regularly with a team until his school holds its spring graduation.

Davis caused quite a stir when he was a no-show for the Sunday morning practice that concluded a three-day minicamp. The team dispatched security personnel to track him down, and he was brought to Redskins Park for an extended meeting with Zorn in the coach's office.

"It felt like I was about to go to the principal's office or something," Davis said. "I can't believe I did that. I overslept. It's totally bad."

Davis does not yet have a contract, so he could not be fined or suspended for missing the practice.

Some scouts had questions about Davis' focus and work habits leading up to the draft. He missed the 2005 Orange Bowl after failing to return from Christmas break in time for the Trojans' trip to Florida. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

For Final, It's About Time

First All-English Champions League final gets a late start

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE | Manchester United and Chelsea are making history with the first all-English Champions League final — and the one with the latest starting time.

Kickoff at Luzhniki Stadium on Wednesday is 10:45 p.m. (2:45 p.m. EDT), which is 8:45 p.m. for television viewers in Western Europe. If the game goes to overtime and a shootout, the new champion won't be crowned until about 1:30 a.m. Trains on the Moscow subway system are running two hours later than usual to accommodate fans.

"We've only had two days here, so there is no adjustment," Chelsea's sea midfielder Frank Lampard said. "Our body clock is basically ready to deal with that time."

United has been playing European soccer for more than a half century but has never kicked off this late.

"Even if we had it at 4 in the morning, that's not really going to bother me," United defender Rio Ferdinand said. "It's not something that has played on our minds. We will just deal with it."

By kickoff, 40,000 English fans who traveled to the match should have had plenty of time to down a pint — or perhaps a few. Because most hotel rooms were booked months ago, many supporters are taking chartered flights, will go to the game and then will fly home at breakfast time Thursday.

"We don't care how late it kicks off, as long as we win," said Man United fan Jimmy Westmancoat, who flew out from England on Monday. ROBERT MILLWARD (AP)

Brendan Healey just completed his second year of law school at Ohio State. He travels all over the country on weekends to play professional lacrosse for the Bayhawks.

For Bayhawks, It's Not About 9-to-5

Washington's pro lacrosse players travel from all over the nation to play

LACROSSE | Washington Bayhawks midfielder Brendan Healey lives in Ohio. He just finished his second year of law school at Ohio State, and he commutes all over the country to play lacrosse for the Bayhawks every weekend. He admits that if the circumstances changed and he could afford to play lacrosse professionally, he would.

"I'd quit my nine-to-five in a heartbeat," he said.

The Bayhawks are made up of dozens of Healeys. There is a human resources consultant, a police officer and a salesman for an energy company. In the words of Dolly Parton, "Working nine to five may be a way to make a living," but most of the players wish that they could just play lacrosse professionally as their full-time job.

Coming off a tough 5-7 season, the Bayhawks players think they have a lot to prove. The organization retooled the team in the offseason, surrounding its core of talent — all-stars attackman Conor Gill, goalkeeper Chris Garrity and midfielder Kyle Dixon — with some new faces.

They're all willing to put their nine-to-five jobs on the backburner — at least on the weekends. Last Sunday, in the season opener, the Bayhawks lost to the Philadelphia Barrage in overtime, 17-12. On Saturday, they will play their home opener against the Denver Outlaws at George Mason Stadium.

"I love the game," Bayhawks first-year defenseman Greg Vetter said. "I would still be playing, even if I wasn't playing in the MLL [Major League Lacrosse]."

Other Bayhawks realize that a full-time career may be more important. Bill Glading, midfielder and 2003 NCAA champion with the University of Virginia, did not play in the MLL last season, choosing to focus on his career instead.

"I took the season off and thought that was going to be it for me. However, being back in Washington, I missed lacrosse a lot and am happy to be back," Glading said.

No-Hitter Helps Define a Career

Red Sox ace Lester
wanted to be known for pitching, not cancer

BASEBALL | Even after chemotherapy cured him, Jon Lester knew that if he was truly going to put his cancer in the past he would have to build a career that was at least as remarkable as his recovery.

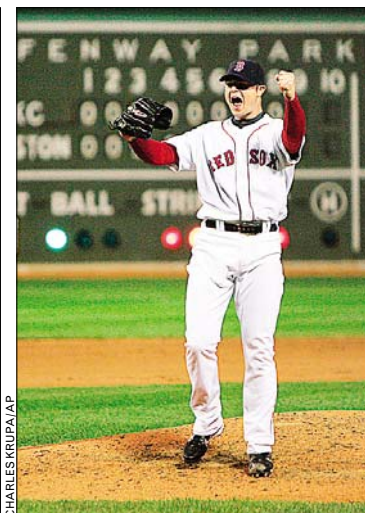

A career that would define him as a pitcher, and not as a pitcher who survived non-Hodgkins lymphoma.

The 24-year-old lefty added another accomplishment to his already amazing list when he pitched the first no-hitter in the majors this season, shutting down the Kansas City Royals 7-0 on Monday night.

"It was a long road back," Lester said. "It was tough mentally and tough physically to go out and pitch every five days. It was a long road. I'm just glad that I'm here at this moment right now, and in five days I'll go and pitch again."

Lester struck out nine and allowed just two base runners; he also made an error when he threw away a pickoff attempt. He fanned Alberto Callaspo to end the game, then walked off the mound pumping both arms in the air.

The speakers played "Tessie," the victory anthem the Red Sox adopted through two World Series titles in four seasons. Lester was instrumental in the second, less than a year after he was pronounced cancer-free, starting Game 4 to help the Red Sox complete their sweep of the Colorado Rockies.

"I can't tell you which one means more to me than the other," Lester said when asked to compare that victory to this one. "The World Series is, obviously, the World Series. How many people get to say they've won that? And a no-hitter is a no-hitter. How many people can say they've done that?" (AP)

Piazza Ends 16-Year Baseball Career

BASEBALL | Mike Piazza is retiring from baseball following a 16-season career in which he became one of the top-hitting catchers in history.

"It has been an amazing journey," he said in a statement released Tuesday by his agent, Dan Lozano. "So, today, I walk away with no regrets.

The 39-year-old Piazza batted .275 with eight homers and 44 RBIs as a designated hitter for Oakland last season, became a free agent and did not re-sign. He was not available to discuss his decision. (AP)

Cars

Challenge This

Gas-guzzling Dodge Challenger serves as pony car's last hurrah

40-SOMETHING | Let's get the unpleasanties out of the way: The Dodge Challenger is to our current economy-and-energy nexus what a bull fiddle would be to Nero's burning Rome. This reimagining of Chrysler's E-body classic, the 1970 Dodge Challenger, is very close to the last thing the world needs right now.

Behold a $40,000 muscle car that gets single-digit fuel economy when your boot's in it — and, come on, your boot is always in it — aimed at upper-middle-class to wealthy males between ages 45 and death. Not exactly the car of tomorrow.

In other words, the Dodge Challenger is brilliant.

If ever a genre of automobiles needed a last hurrah, it's the pony car. In the next two years, the Challenger and the coming-soon Chevrolet Camaro will re-create the pony car wars of the late 1960s and early 1970s, and then go away for precisely the same reasons they did in the early 1970s: increasing fuel economy standards and the price of gas. I'm fascinated by the symmetry of it.

Before Chrysler can get to the business of building greener cars

The new Dodge Challenger builds on the heritage of its classic ancestor. The grille and other design elements suggest the look of the original 1970 pony car.

— and on this score it's the most backward of all the auto companies — it has to stay in business. To that end, the Challenger offers a huge rate of return in publicity and street cred.

The relative handful of geezers who buy this car — the 2008 model year run of 6,800 units already has been sold — will not be fretting fuel economy, the price of gas or the perspiration of polar bears. The car is aimed like a Hellfire missile at the emotional groins of boomers who have loads of cash and empty nests. The car will sell like mad for a year or two and then fall off a cliff.

The Old Guard of Amusement

Danish park keeps 19th-century feel, but with roller coasters

DESTINATIONS | The 165-year-old amusement park that inspired both Walt Disney and Danish fairy tale writer Hans Christian Andersen offers style and charm of a kind often imitated.

Tivoli Gardens, Copenhagen's downtown landmark, blends tradition and modernity with old-style Ferris wheels and gravity-defying rides, family restaurants and gourmet eateries.

Neon lights are banned here, and plastic materials are avoided — beer cups aside — to preserve the feel of an old-style amusement park.

"We want to maintain tradition and quality," Tivoli manager Lars Liebst said.

In 1841, Georg Carstensen sought royal permission to create an amusement park on the ramparts that once surrounded medieval Copenhagen. The son of a diplomat, he wanted to give Danes samples of the wonders he had seen during childhood trips abroad.

Tivoli opened two years later.

The Danish capital has since grown around the green oasis where families and friends stroll, and lovers cuddle up on benches amid oaks, birches and Japanese cherry trees.

"It's so beautiful, it's cozy," said Elin Peitersen, a 74-year-old retired secretary. "You can take your family along or sit on a bench, like I do, and enjoy others having a good time."

The park covers about 880,000 square feet (82,000 square meters), elbowed between the city hall and the capital's main train station.

When Tivoli opened on Aug. 15, 1843, 3,615 visitors were recorded. About 10,000 came on the following Sunday.

The biggest day was Tivoli's 100th birthday, when 112,802 celebrated "Carstensen's old garden," as Danes like to call the park. JAN M. OLSEN (AP)

Harrison Ford takes a fourth (and final?) shot at 'Indy' films

ADVENTURE | With most of our action movie icons, there are easily identifiable trademarks: John Wayne's pigeon-toed swagger and slow-rolling drawl; Humphrey Bogart's facial twitches and muted trombone growl; Clint Eastwood's narrow squints and freeze-dried rasp.

Harrison Ford? What is it that jumps out in front of you when thinking of one of the biggest action stars of the last 30-something years? What would your garden-variety Vegas comic use as fodder for a Harrison Ford impression, besides a bullwhip or a ray gun? Can't think of any, right? Neither can we.

You really have to reach to find an idiosyncrasy in Ford that can be stretched to satiric excess. Still, in a post-ironic era of movie stardom, it's just possible that Ford's very lack of a conspicuous trademark has helped extend his capital as an action hero well into the 21st century.

On Thursday, a couple months shy of his 66th birthday, Ford returns in what may well be his most indelible cinematic incarnation in “Indiana Jones and the Kingdom of the Crystal Skull.” This is the fourth time Ford has taken up the battered fedora, leather jacket and aforementioned bullwhip of his archaeologist alter ego — and the first time in almost 20 years.

You'd think that if director Steven Spielberg and company wanted to jump-start this franchise after such a long interval, they could have found someone younger to wear Indiana Jones' costume. Apparently, this wasn't close to being an option. And it shouldn't have been.

Who besides Ford best embodies the agreeable and accessible combination of He-Man and everyman that Indiana Jones carries into pursuit of fame and glory? Who else could best enact the role of someone suddenly confronted with overwhelming odds but ruggedly equipped to overcome them with seat-of-the-pants aplomb?

Well, Bruce Willis does that stuff, too, though his hipper, flashier approach offers a greater contrast to Ford's more stolid action archetype.

That Ford has chosen to once again take up the bullwhip and fedora suggests that he's ready to have fun again. And whenever he has fun, we do, too. That simple equation may add up to big numbers for “Kingdom of the Crystal Skull,” assuming that we don't think it's ridiculous for a grizzled old man to hang from ceilings, car bumpers and cliffs.

Lisa cooks yet another seemingly unappetizing dish on “Top Chef.”

A Sour Disposition

On 'Top Chef,' Lisa's endless grumpiness is getting old quickly

GROUCH | Every story needs an antagonist, and “Top Chef Chicago” is no different. Ideally, however, since it is a cooking competition, our antagonist would be a top-tier cook and a huge pain in the rump roast. But, sadly, it seems that Lisa, everybody's least favorite person, is being kept around just for the sake of the drama she brings, as her food puts her in the bottom three almost every week.

Last week, when she faced the judges for her under-cooked shrimp stir-fry with too-hot pineapple sauce and mushy rice, Padma asked her why she thought she was there. “I just think you guys like to have me here. I don't know; you tell me,” was her smart-alecky response. She was there, as she often is, because her food was bad.

Perhaps this could have gone unchecked had she not, minutes later, ratted out Andrew to the judges for having missed a required ingredient. So, not only is she an inconsistent chef and a grump, but she's a tattletale! Enough is enough. Let's get this chick knife-packing.

Canadian star all set to release new album after four-year break

COMEBACK | For all you musicians just getting a start out there, Alanis Morissette has a time-management tip from the professional trenches: "I have to check my Web site to find out what I'm supposed to be doing," she says with a laugh.

It's no surprise, really. In the build-up to the June 10 release of "Flavors of Entanglement," Morissette and her team have a vast promotional schedule planned.

At the end of May, she embarks on a summer tour of Europe, followed by North American dates in the fall. Among the announced stops are the Pinkpop Festival in the Netherlands (June 1) and the Heineken Festival in Venice (June 22).

Morissette has already been on an extended listening tour with stops in England and France; in addition, she courted retailers at the National Association of Recording Merchandisers in San Francisco in early May by performing a selection of tracks from throughout her career, and stopping between songs to chat about her creative process.

"She's her own best friend, with her energy and her affability," Morissette's manager, Will Botwin, says. "We want to get her in a room playing and let her sing."

On "Flavors," Morissette worked with Frou Frou's Guy Sigsworth to create an album full of soaring melodies and the intensely personal lyrics that built her reputation.

"He's a mad scientist genius freak of nature," Morissette says of Sigsworth. "I'd get to the studio at 1 p.m., and we'd write and get a song by 4 p.m. It's a meticulous process."

The first single, "Underneath," has tallied 16,000 digital downloads in the United States, according to Nielsen SoundScan, and the full album will be made available for pre-order on Amazon and iTunes.

"We know she has a very loyal fan base and we wanted to find a creative way to get her music to her fans," says David Grant, vice president of marketing at Warner Music Group. "She recorded 25 songs for this album, and I think there's a lot of great material that was left over."

So, for Morissette, what's the difference now, four years down the road, when it comes to preparing for the release of a new album? "I'm much better at self-care this time," she says. "It's all a little more sane."

CASTING METHODS: MTV's latest stroke of reality show brilliance is "Legally Blonde the Musical: The Search for Elle Woods," in which 10 women will compete to star in a Broadway musical, mentored by Hillary Duff's older sister, Haylie.

Escape the Past

This season of 'Idol' is almost over. Why was it so lame?

IDOLATRY | Viewers will have to sit through a two-hour "American Idol" (8 p.m., Fox) to find out who wins. On the other hand, if you've been following this season, you're pretty used to the vast expanse of idle hours.

I'm hardly the only observer to declare this the worst "Idol" ever. Is the franchise getting tired? Or was this year's crop simply uninspired?

A show reaching 20 million viewers on a "bad" night seems to be surviving just fine. But here's my advice for a new-and-improved "Idol": when the show returns, it will be nearly the 10th year of the century. How about a 21st-century "Idol," in which the talent can perform only songs written after 2000?

Am I the only one tired of hearing the sounds of the 1960s and 1970s recycled endlessly? If "Idol" has a problem, it is the dead weight of nostalgia. We are now 41 years removed from 1967, the Summer of Love and Otis Redding. Why expect 19-year-olds to sing songs that old? After all, Aretha, Janis and Jimi didn't become stars by performing the hits of 1926. Perhaps it's time for "Idol" to say goodbye to yesterday — and to Paul McCartney's "Yesterday" — and face the future. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

More products help the gluten-intolerant cook and eat well

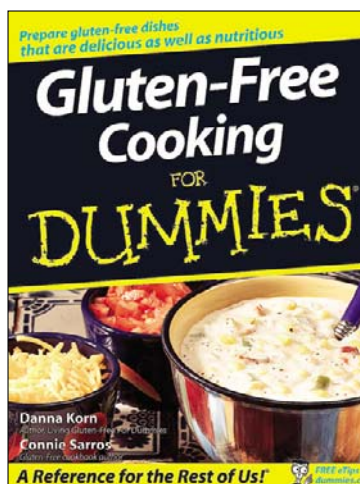

Going gluten-free probably never will be easy.

That's because those pesky proteins common to wheat and other grains can show up in the most unlikely places, from sour creams and chocolate milks to salad dressings and dips.

But life is getting easier for the estimated 1.5 million to 3 million Americans with celiac disease, a condition that leaves them unable to digest gluten. As awareness has grown, so have the number of products and books to help people cope.

"It's like night and day," Danna Korn, author of several gluten-free cookbooks, says of the availability of gluten-free products now compared to when she first needed them for her gluten-intolerant son 17 years ago.

"I walked into a store and said, 'Hi, where's your gluten-free department?'" she says. "There was one type of bread that was less tasteful than sawdust glued together. I

QUALITY INGREDIENTS: The market for products that cater to people with celiac disease, a condition that leaves people unable to digest gluten, has greatly expanded in the U.S. in recent years. People who want to cook gluten-free meals can now consult a range of resources and choose from many types of foods and ethnic cuisines.

Gluten-Free Gluttony

cried as my son ate it."

Today, choices abound. Once a niche of the natural foods market, gluten-free products now can be found in mainstream grocers. Even King Arthur Flour Co. is launching a line of gluten-free mixes.

And just as importantly, the quality of these products is markedly better.

Part of what makes gluten so hard to avoid is that it is an essential component of so many everyday products. The elastic nature of gluten proteins is what enables breads and other baked goods to rise.

Gluten also is a common additive in processed foods, often used as a thickening agent.

The easiest way to avoid gluten is to stick with unprocessed foods that are naturally gluten-free, such as produce, most dairy, nuts, beans, meat, poultry, seafood, eggs, rice, corn, potatoes and grains such as quinoa, buckwheat and millet.

And most ethnic cuisines — including Mexican, Indian, Chinese (use wheat-free soy sauce) and Ethiopian — rarely use gluten. So, switching to a gluten-free diet involves more of a shift in perspective than a departure from good taste.

"[Eating gluten-free] can open people up to a different way of eating. The American diet is pretty narrow. I eat more varieties of food, produce and ethnic foods than I ever have in my life," says Shauna James Ahern, author of "Gluten-Free Girl," a memoir and cookbook based on her blog, Glutenfreegirl.blogspot.com. Biologists help raise a penguin that was rejected by its family

Like many moms of newborns, Caitlin Hume still has plenty of work to do when she gets home. There's the herring-and-krill formula to prepare, followed by a little peeping and playtime, then bed.

For the past few weeks, Hume and fellow New England Aquarium biologist Heather Urquhart have been mothering a 22-ounce Little Blue Penguin that was rejected by its parents after a difficult hatching.

Each night, the two surrogate moms delicately pack the baby — covered in soft, gray-blue down — into a plastic cooler. Inside, the bird rests comfortably, swaddled in a towel for the car ride home, oblivious to Boston's rush-hour traffic.

Once home, the still-unnamed chick — who turns 37 days old on

New England Aquarium biologist Caitlin Hume holds a penguin she is mothering.

Tuesday — waits in the guest room until Hume prepares a baby formula of herring fillet and shrimp-like krill that goes into a blender and is heated to about 98 degrees. The pungent meal is fed to the penguin four times a day using a syringe with a special tip.

After dinner, the penguin takes a long nap — not unlike a human baby.

"After you feed him, he'll make some peeping noises for a while, and then he goes to sleep," said Hume, who has no children of her own. "And then he's out cold until the next feeding," around 5 a.m.

The Little Blue Penguin species, which is native to Australia and New Zealand, is among three

“After you feed him, he'll make some peeping noises for a while, and then he goes to sleep.”

CAITLIN HUME, PENGUIN CARETAKER

that are part of the New England Aquarium's penguin habitat. The other two include the African, native to South Africa, and the Rockhopper, which is found principally along Argentina and the Falkland Islands.

Andrea Desjardins, a penguin biologist who works at the aquarium, said the penguin team noticed an egg was about a week overdue from its normal 38-day term. They found the chick inside was still developing, so they essentially induced the chick to hatch by slowing chipping away tiny bits of shell, allowing the penguin to eventually break through.

When the biologists tried to give the bird back to his parents to raise it normally, they rejected the baby.

"Unfortunately, being separated from the egg so long, the parents seemed uninterested in the chick," Desjardins said.

Aquarium biologists said the baby could have died because it wasn't being kept warm or fed. That's when the surrogate moms stepped in.

"It's a lot of work, although I guess it's probably easier than having a real baby, because I can leave him in my house when I'm done," Hume said.

During the day, the penguin is cared for deep inside the aquarium, away from visitors.

The baby penguin appears to be making good progress and likely will be introduced to other chicks by the end of May. Biologists won't be able to determine the bird's sex until it is three months old.

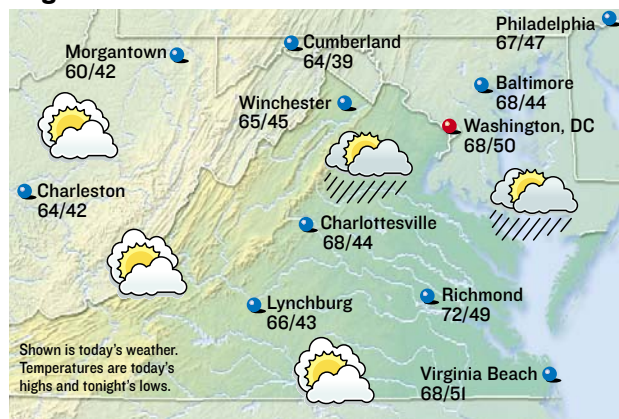

Urquhart, who manages the penguin exhibit, admits to a little separation anxiety when it's Hume's turn to take the chick home. When the baby is with her, Urquhart said, she will sometimes wake up in the middle of the night just to check on it.

"It creates a special feeling for you. You feel like you're part of a very special process," Urquhart said. "You're helping bring a new life into the world." MATT PITTA (AP)

LOOKout

LOOK OUT, BOYS: Mirian Lamberth, Nautica's creative director, is one of a few female designers who are successful in menswear.

With their feminine eye for style, women break in menswear

The menswear industry is still largely a boys' club, with men designing men's clothes.

For every Donatella Versace and Miuccia Prada, there's a Tom Ford and a Thom Browne — and a Ralph Lauren, a Joseph Abboud and a John Varvatos.

But a handful of female designers have achieved success, and, ironically, it may be the feminine touch that proves to be their secret weapon.

"I'm not sure that men always understand how sexy, elegant and glamorous menswear can be," says Versace. "As a woman, I appreciate how good men can look, and so my menswear is really designed to make the wearer look — and feel — incredibly attractive."

Still, unlike in womenswear, where many of the best-known designers are men, the sight of a woman designing a three-piece suit can still feel revolutionary.

At her first runway show for Nautica, creative director Mirian Lamberth says she heard a collective gasp when she took her bow because people were surprised to

Designing Women

"I'm not sure that men always understand how sexy, elegant and glamorous menswear can be."

DONATELLA VERSACE, DESIGNER

see a woman.

To Tom Kalendarian, Barneys New York executive vice president of menswear, female designers seem to have a more artful approach.

"I think men as designers are more technical than conceptual. I feel that women as designers for men are more conceptual — it's not a positive or negative — but they're different positions to approach it from," he says.

But the greater difference may depend on the gender that launched a designer's career. Giorgio Armani, for instance, started in menswear and is a master tailor even when he creates a woman's evening gown, while Versace, whose trademark is a liquid silk gown, can sew sultry movement into a man's suit.

Hermes designer Veronique Nichanian says the more restrictive tailoring of menswear requires some creative thinking.

"I like combining fabrics that do not necessarily always complement each other. It should present an element of surprise, a subtle discovery — and a personal detail that reveals a little about the wearer," Nichanian says.

Lamberth has helmed Nautica since January 2007. Menswear was always her first love, she says, but most of her design school peers found womenswear to be more glamorous and sexy.

She is attracted to the structured nature of men's clothes, even for women. Her personal style icons include Marlene Dietrich and Diane Keaton's "Annie Hall" because she sees intelligence and strength in their style.

"There are no feminine hints on our menswear line while I'm here. Personally, I have a hard time with this 'metrosexual' look," she says. "I'd rather have a guy maybe not dressed to perfection but have a sense of ease." SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

Hair

Words Defy Us

The tube of CREME DE COCO HAIR MASQUE ($24, see Bumbleandbumble.com for stores) reads, "Words can't describe how soft, silky and glossy this trio of tropical butters leaves hair." That sounds like a dare! Said trio — mango, shea and muruuru — leaves hair as soft as the contents of a lint trap after machine-drying an angora tarp; as silky as a Corian counter top sprinkled with baby powder by a geisha; as glossy as the hide of a freshly waxed family sedan when it's spanked by the dawn. As for the fragrance: a coconut left in an attic for far too long, gnawed upon by a middle-schooler's long-lost hamster, the only flaw in an otherwise fine product. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

A Little Fishy

We were all set to say Estee Lauder's new DOUBLE WEAR ZERO-SMUDGE LENGTHENING MASCARA ($20, Estelauder.com) is above average. No clumps, doesn't flake, blah, blah, great basic mascara, blah, blah. But then we re-read the press release and saw these mysterious words: jellied water. What is jellied water?

Google says it is something you feed to your pet reptiles, which would be a very odd — and also kind of uber-creepy — mascara ingredient. We simply can't wait for goldfish flake foundation. ERIN CLEMENTS RUSHING

Author JAMES FREY was online Tuesday to discuss his new novel, "Bright Shiny Morning." (Frey's previous book, "A Million Little Pieces," stirred up controversy two years ago when he admitted to having fabricated parts of it.)

These days, when a person from abroad thinks about Los Angeles, they probably think first about Tinseltown. But has this always been the case? Was there actually a time when Hollywood wasn't the biggest draw in Los Angeles?

Hollywood has been a draw since the inception of the film business, sometime around 1910. There is, however, massive immigration to L.A. that has nothing to do with entertainment. One of the things I wanted to do with "BSM" was open up the idea of L.A.; give a broader view of it. It's a massive, diverse, incredible city. Very little of the population is actually involved in entertainment in any way.

I truly enjoyed "A Million Little Pieces" and "My Friend Leonard." I am sure a lot of thought and editing goes into the process, but it seems so "stream of consciousness." How much of it is your stream of consciousness, and how much is a "writing style"?

The books are written very deliberately. Sometimes it comes easily, sometimes not. Either way, I try to be very careful about the words and the punctuation, or lack thereof. I also never really read my own writing, so I try to make it perfect the first time through.

Why would anyone want to read anything this fraud has to write?

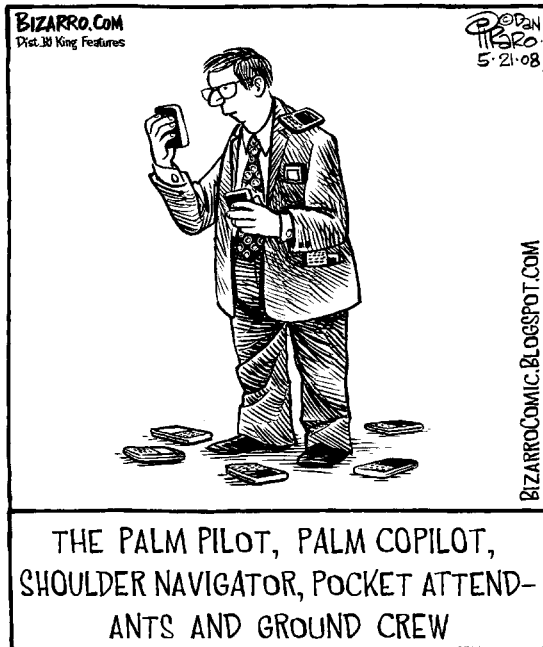

I hope we meet someday so I can shake your hand and give you a big hug.

AS HEARD ON PAUL HARVEY NEWS THE BEST AIR PURIFIER EVER Works 4 Ways to Attack Pollution from Air, Surfaces and Fabrics

Works to eliminate odors, dust, smoke, pollen, germs, mold, bacteria, viruses, pet dander, dust mites and much more

Will eliminate the most noticeable indoor air pollutants in just 15 minutes

Provides relief from allergies and sinus

By John Whitehead, Media Services

BioTech Research has announced EdenPURE™, the ultimate air purifier.

We believe the EdenPURE™ is the best and most advanced air purifier on the market.

You have probably heard about the remarkable EdenPURE™ on television across the nation and as heard on Paul Harvey News nationally.

It runs super quiet and requires no filter replacement.

Unlike typical air purifiers which have only 1 or 2 mechanisms of reducing pollution, the EdenPURE™ has 4 mechanisms which attack pollution.

There are many different types of pollution and many of them, especially the worst, cannot be effectively reduced with the limited mechanisms of old-style air purifiers. The EdenPURE™ 4-mechanism process destroys more types of pollution.

Some of the worst pollution comes from contaminated surfaces and fabrics. This remarkable air purifier not only attacks pollution from the air, but can also safely reduce pollution embedded in walls, ceilings, floors, carpets, furniture, clothing, and on counter-tops, as well as, other surfaces. It works to sanitize everything in the home.

The EdenPURE™ can bring relief from the symptoms associated with sinus, and other respiratory discomfort. When pollutants are removed from the air you should sleep better, and feel better in a cleaner environment. The result is reduced fatigue and improved mental abilities.

The air purification technology in the EdenPURE™ is that used by the federal government to purify air in the Space Shuttle and the International Space Station.

Old style HEPA type air purifiers only remove dust and some allergens. They do not remove the most harmful pollutants such as bacteria, viruses, mold and yeast.

And if you have one of those air purifiers that has no fan, beware. More will be explained on this as you read on.

The EdenPURE™ has a super advanced system of air movement that is so quiet that you would have to put your ear up next to it to know that it's even running. And the EdenPURE™ is virtually maintenance free.

For more on the new EdenPURE™, here is my remarkable interview with Julius Toth, Director of Product Development for BioTech Research.

Q. BioTech Research has been in the air purification business for a long time and your previous air purifier model was the all-time best seller and was super effective. Why is the new EdenPURE™ air purifier so much better?

A. Yes, our previous model was an all-time best seller and in our opinion was the best air purifier on the market, which was also the opinion of our customers.

But the new EdenPURE™ is much more advanced. Our previous model used 2 very effective mechanisms to eliminate pollution, which were combinations of activated oxygen and ultraviolet light.

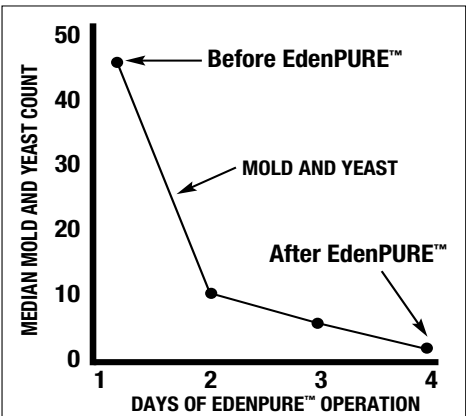

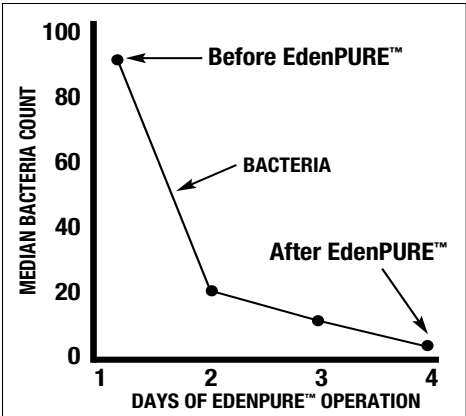

The EdenPURE™ utilizes 4 advanced electronic air purification mechanisms. I call it the EdenPURE™ process.

The advanced technology in the EdenPURE™ is that used in spacecrafts such as the Space Shuttle and the International Space Station.

Q. Why is it that you just can't have a good filter system to eliminate air pollution?

A. There are many reasons. First of all, a lot of the most powerful pollutants such as viruses and bacteria and a number of allergens are so small, filters cannot trap them effectively. HEPA filter type air purifiers mainly remove dust and some allergens.

EdenPURE™ - Never breathe bad air again

EdenPURE™ eliminates most pollution in 15 minutes. Bacteria, mold and yeast are among the most difficult pollutants to eliminate. Old style air purifiers rarely remove them to an acceptable level. The EdenPURE™ eliminated virtually all the bacteria, mold and yeast in only 24 hours. This independent laboratory test was conducted by Dr. Dee M. Graham, one of the leading air pollution experts in the world.

Testimonies of a few of the many EdenPURE™ satisfied customers

The EdenPURE™ is the most remarkable product that I have tried in years. All of the claims hold true. Not only did it eliminate the dust in my house, I have not had a sinus headache or scratchy throat since I began using it. The whole house smells fresh and clean. You would never be able to tell that I have two dogs and a cat. It is also nice not to have to bother changing filters. You just plug it in, turn it on and forget about it. It is truly refreshing to use a product that does everything that it is supposed to do and more. Michelle Goldsmith

The EdenPURE™ that I used in my apartment for approximately a week was different than any air purifier that I have tried. Everyone was able to take deeper breathes than normal in the apartment. My cats now stay in the room more when someone is smoking. They would not before. My boyfriend's allergies were unnoticeable when he was inside. I personally like the fresh smell the EdenPURE™ let off. Jenny Kico

I have terrible sinus problems. I'm also allergic to dog and cat dander, grass, dust, and ragweed. Before using the EdenPURE™ I had to take antihistamines and use allergy/sinus nasal spray. I was embarrassed because my eyes were red and I always sounded like I had a cold. I then got the amazing EdenPURE™. I plugged in the EdenPURE™ and went about my daily duties when I suddenly noticed I wasn't coughing or wheezing or clearing my throat. This was incredible. The EdenPURE™ really works! I am so happy. My eyes are clear and I can breathe. I've tried many other air purifiers, they're all in my storage room with other failed products. The EdenPURE™ truly does what it claims to do. Diane C. Vance

The EdenPURE™ Area Model

Secondly, filter air purifiers require the air to be brought through the machine. Therefore, it does not get to the air in the far corners of the room. And worse it does not eliminate the main source of the pollution which is contamination on surfaces, and embedded pollution in fabric and walls.

Q. What about those air purifiers that have no fan?

A. It has been well documented that an air purifier without a fan cannot possibly remove pollution to any substantial level. Those types mainly remove pollution that is very close to the unit. That's fine if you're purifying the air in a broom closet, but not for a wide area. Also, those units have you wiping off a plate to clean off the trapped pollution. But unless those units have ultraviolet light, that plate contains live bacteria and viruses that can be harmful.

Q. How does the EdenPURE™ eliminate pollution without requiring the air to go through the unit, and how does it eliminate pollution on surfaces and fabrics?

A. The EdenPURE™ has 4 electronic mechanisms to attack pollution that mimic the way it is done by nature's thunderstorm. Thunderstorms produce highly activated oxygen which destroys pollution and puts negative ions in the air that also destroy pollution. The air is now ionized fresh and free of the most irritating pollutants, which promotes a healthier environment.

Three of the 4 electronic mechanisms in the EdenPURE™ go out and seek out pollution throughout the room, on surfaces, and in fabrics like guided missiles. The pollution cannot hide.

Q. What is the range of pollutants that the EdenPURE™ takes out of the air?

A. It removes nearly all airborne and surface organic and inorganic pollutants.

Organic pollutants removed by the EdenPURE™ include: fungus, mold, bacteria, tobacco odor, pet odors and most other household odors. It can also kill viruses.

The EdenPURE™ removes inorganic pollutants including dust and many other chemical compounds present in the home too numerous to mention here.

The Wall Street Journal recently reported that there is 5 times more air pollution in a house than there is in the open air outside the house. Everyday you breathe all these pollutants into your lungs and many go into your body.

Q. Does the EdenPURE™ require filter replacement like the old-style HEPA air purifiers?

A. No. There is a small 4 inch by 8 inch pre-filter that you simply clean periodically by running water over it. This pre-filter is made of highly durable mesh that will last a lifetime.

Q. So then the EdenPURE™ sanitizes everything in the house?

A. It works to sanitize the air, walls, floors, ceiling, furniture, carpeting, countertop surfaces, sinks, bathtubs, toilets, and even sanitizes your clothes.

Q. How well does the EdenPURE™ work on eliminating odors?

A. The EdenPURE™ will work to eliminate all odors. It eliminates odors from cigarette smoke, urine, mildew, cooking odors, and any other odors in your home. The EdenPURE™ odor elimination is so powerful that it will eliminate the odor of a skunk in minutes.

After eliminating the odor from the air, the EdenPURE™ then goes to the source of the odor. It neutralizes embedded urine in carpet, and cigarette smoke that is embedded in carpet, furniture, wallpaper, and clothing. It also destroys mold and yeast.

Q. What are the health benefits to the EdenPURE™?

A. There are many. The EdenPURE™ will help relieve allergies, asthma and other respiratory problems. It also introduces extra oxygen into the air and puts healthy negative ions into the air. Therefore you will tend to sleep better at night. As a result you will be much more alert and experience less fatigue when you are awake.

The EdenPURE™ works to eliminate toxins so that they do not get into your body. Therefore you will look better, feel better, and live healthier. You will now have energy and be more mentally alert. The EdenPURE™ can change the mood of everyone in your home for the better.
